Title:	Presentation: The use and benefits of the construct-aligned scale for clinical assessment
Date:	November 2022
Type:	Presentation
Author(s)/ Presenter(s):	Katie Burns Ryan, Christopher Smoley, Christopher Petrie
Abstract (or Book Review):	Clinical assessment is a systematic process used by mental health professionals to evaluate a patient's functioning in multiple areas. Construct-aligned scales are based on milestones that were set down by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education in the United States. Construct-aligned scales have categories showing increasing independence and sophistication in the domain being assessed.
